

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An information processing apparatus includes: an input unit for entering a data string composed of a plurality of information output to a display unit; an extractor for automatically extracting information from a data string entered by the input unit according to a predetermined condition; a generator for generating print data for printing out information extracted by the extractor; and an output unit for outputting print data generated by the generator to a printer.